"A lot of people frown upon the idea of going to a small school, but for me a small school is the only kind of school I want to go to. Here at Timberline everyone knows everyone, which is great because that means we all care for one another. The teachers care enough to push you to do better, and the students have all known each other forever, so we rarely have a student without a group to which they belong. People also assume that small schools have very few options when it comes to classes but the administration here has made sure that it was possible for me to take college classes through IDLA." - Senior Student
