At Mobile County Training School (MCTS), all teachers have undergone extensive professional development this year. Our goal is to increase student engagement, decrease discipline referrals, and become more efficient in using our data. Starting in August, teachers have had several sessions with district personnel regarding new and emerging technologies. We have implemented these programs into our daily lessons. In addition, we have created 3 computer labs and two mobile labs to support our push towards technology. Moreover, the administration has completed PLU's about how they can better use technology in the school. Teachers are flipping classrooms, we have had virtual faculty meetings, and we are closer to becoming a BYOD school.

We completed a needs assessment and are in the process of procuring more equipment for the future. Teachers will attend Professional Development conferences this summer in San Antonio and Hoover, Al. They will share what they think will help our students the most. Moreover, we will continue to use new and emerging technologies to foster understanding, promote digital literacy, and help teachers become more efficient as we prepare students for the 21st century.
