

Reflecting on Your Current Beliefs and Practices

Before examining the strategies in this module, take some time to examine your current beliefs and practices by answering the following questions:

1. To what extent do you demonstrate "withitness" by continuously scanning your classroom and intervening when students' inappropriate behavior threatens to become disruptive?

2. To what extent are there explicit and concrete consequences for inappropriate behavior in your classroom, especially when that behavior has progressed beyond a point where it can be addressed by withitness?

3. How do you involve parents/guardians and students in identifying and discussing behaviors that need to stop in class?

4. To what extent does your classroom reflect a coherent and sustained multitiered plan for classroom management issues extending from students' failure to follow rules and procedures?

5. How do you defuse volatile or high-intensity situations involving students' lack of adherence to rules and procedures?
