Generalize

- A generalization is a broad statement or rule that applies to many examples.
- Valid generalizations are supported by examples, facts, or good logic. Invalid generalizations are not supported.

Directions Read the following passage. Then complete the diagram below by making a generalization about Jung and supporting it with examples.

After Jung lost her grandmother’s brooch, she wasn’t sure what to do. She feared telling her grandmother the truth because it would break her heart. So, Jung took all of her savings and went downtown to see if she could find a similar brooch to replace the lost one. She found one with beautiful emerald stones, but it was too expensive. She found another one that she could afford, but it paled in comparison to the original. Jung decided to tell her grandmother the truth. She crept up the stairs to her grandmother’s room and softly knocked on the door. When her grandmother answered it, she was wearing the brooch! Jung told her what had happened anyway. Her grandmother was pleased that Jung had been honest and allowed Jung to borrow the brooch again. Jung realized it’s always best to tell the truth.

Examples

2.
3.

Generalization

4.

5. Make a prediction about whether or not Jung will lose the brooch the next time.

Home Activity Your child made a generalization based on examples in a story. Have your child make a generalization about his or her personality or behavior. Discuss examples from your child’s life that would support this generalization.

A Tale from China

Long ago, in a village in China, lived a poor young girl named Mei. Every day Mei gathered berries to sell at the market so she could buy food.

One day, Mei started for home when she saw a blue silk pouch lying on the ground. She opened it and found twelve beautiful shiny pearls. She knew that someone must have lost it. So, she decided to sit down and wait for the owner to appear.

Mei noticed a woman searching for something. “Did you lose this pouch?” Mei asked.

“Yes, I did,” the woman answered. She grabbed the pouch, opened it, and counted out the pearls. “There are only twelve pearls in this pouch. I had twenty pearls. You must have stolen the rest.”

Mei protested, but the woman continued to scream accusations. Finally, the merchants urged them to have Judge Cheng settle the dispute.

When Judge Cheng heard their story, he asked the woman, “How many pearls did you lose?”

“Twenty,” she answered.

“Well, since you insist that you lost twenty pearls, the pouch can’t be yours. Mei found it and tried to return it to its rightful owner. So she deserves to keep it.”

Vocabulary • Prefixes re-, dis-

- A prefix is added to the beginning of a base word and changes the base word’s meaning.
- The prefix re- means “again” or “back”; the prefix dis- means “to remove” or “the opposite of.”

Directions Read the following passage. Then answer the questions below.

Pete dismounted from Shadow’s saddle and led his beloved horse toward the stable. He was distressed. Shadow was clearly too sick to run in the race next week. He knew he would never fulfill his dream of winning the Crescent City Classic now. When Pete entered the stable, he found Tyler, the stable’s owner, waiting for him. “Pete,” said Tyler, “I want you to enter the Classic with Dale.”

“Dale?” Pete shook his head, recalling the last time he had seen Dale race. “But he’s the fastest horse here! Why me?”

“I can say confidently that you and Dale will work well with each other,” Tyler said. “I think it’s a great match.”

“But ... how will I ever repay you?”

“Do your best at the Classic and that will be more than enough.”

1. How does the prefix change the meaning of the base word in dismounted?

2. What is the prefix in recalling? What does the word mean?

3. Can you apply the rules of prefixes with finding the meaning of the word distressed? Why or why not?

4. For what does Pete want to repay Tyler?

5. What is the meaning of dishonor? Give an example of how Pete could dishonor his agreement with Tyler.

Home Activity Your child identified prefixes to help determine the meanings of words. Make a two-column chart on a piece of paper. In the first column, write the prefixes dis- and re-. In the second column, write as many base words as the two of you can think of that would make sense when added to these prefixes.
Outline

- An outline is a plan that shows how a story, article, report, or other text is organized. You can use an outline to better understand how a text is organized or as a way to organize your own thoughts before you write something of your own.
- Outlines contain a title, heads, subheads, and details.

Directions Study the following outline. Then answer the questions below.

My Two Best Friends
I. Luis
   A. Personality
      1. funny
      2. trustworthy
      3. intelligent
   B. Why we are friends
      1. We're lab partners in science class.
      2. We play on the soccer team together.
      3. He's an older brother to me.
II. Mandy
   A. Personality
      1. serious
      2. athletic
      3. understanding
   B. Why we are friends
      1. We walk to school together.
      2. We have Spanish and math classes together.
      3. We think the same way about the world.

1. What might be the purpose of this outline?

2. What are the two topics?

3. What is similar about why the author is friends with Luis and Mandy?

4. What is one major difference between the personalities of Luis and Mandy?

5. Why do you think it is important to have about the same number of subtopics under each topic?
Directions  Read the following essay. Then fill in the missing sections of the outline below.

Ellen and I met when we were two years old. She and I were in day care together. I remember playing in the sandbox with Ellen, and I know we had a lot of fun. Later on, we attended the same elementary school and junior high.

Ellen is always cheerful and friendly. On my birthday, she baked me a cake and made a card for me. I am friends with Ellen because I know that I can tell her anything, and she won't laugh at me. It is nice to have a friend like that.

Lionel just moved to town this year. I remember on the first day of school, he was wearing a Tigers jersey. I was wearing one too. When we saw each other in math class, we both started cracking up about it. I invited Lionel over to my house to watch the Tigers game one Saturday afternoon, and after that we have never missed a game.

Lionel is intelligent and fun to hang out with. We can talk about sports, school, or just about anything. He wants to be an archaeologist when he grows up, and his stories about ancient civilizations are always interesting.

Field Trip
Last winter our class take a fieldtrip to a museum. Snow flakes fell gently around us as we watched a worker apply a coat of white wash to a fence nearby. Suddenly the weather changed and a thunder storm began. We moved inside to the theater. I pushed my friend up the wheel chair ramp. Once inside we saw a show about the solar system that made the planets look like different-sized pinholes and the sun one giant polka dot on the ceiling of the dark room. All in all, it was an interesting day.
