Telemachus. For each character, identify two traits revealed in the passage. Then, for each trait,

The noble and enduring man [Odysseus] replied:

"No god. Why take me for a god? No, no.
I am that father whom your boyhood lacked and suffered pain for lack of. I am he."

Held back too long, the tears ran down his cheeks as he embraced his son.

Only Telemachus, uncomprehending, wild with incredulity [disbelief], cried out: "You cannot be my father Odysseus!
Meddling spirits conceived this trick to twist the knife in me!

No man of woman born could work these wonders by his own craft, unless a god came into it with ease to turn him young or old at will. I swear you were in rags and old, and here you stand like one of the immortals!" Odysseus brought his ranging mind to bear and said:

"This is not princely, to be swept away by wonder at your father's presence.

No other Odysseus will ever come, for he and I are one, the same; his bitter fortune and his wanderings are mine.

Twenty years gone, and I am back again on my own island."
