

How to Transfer Your Credit

Put your UConn credit to work, you earned it.

Save syllabi. Colleges and universities might request a copy of your course syllabus to assure that the course is comparable to the one taught on their campus.

Contact colleges and universities directly. If you already know the institution you plan to attend, you should contact them directly to see where transcripts should be sent and the transfer credits they accept.

Search the public credit transfer database found on the UConn ECE website. We have mined the policies of hundreds of universities and colleges.

Wait until your course is completed to request your transcript. One of the most valuable pieces of a transcript is the grade. Make sure grades have been posted before requesting a transcript be sent to another institution.

Request a UConn transcript. You are responsible for requesting your UConn transcript be sent to a different institution. UConn ECE recommends requesting an additional transcript for your own records.

Speak to college administration. If your credit was not automatically transferred when a transcript was provided, do not give up. You should speak to your academic advisors or faculty to see if there is any more information that needs to be provided in order to have the credit recognized.

- * You must receive a grade of C or above in any UConn ECE course to receive course credit. Any grade below a C will automatically appear as an audit on your transcript. You do not receive credit for audited courses.

Credits transfer about 87% of the time

While the University of Connecticut cannot guarantee course recognition on behalf of another university, it strives to make the transfer of credits from one institution to another as simple as possible. The majority of students who have taken University of Connecticut courses through UConn Early College Experience have successfully transferred their UConn credits to the college or university of their choice.
