Designate a “protected” spot in your house for homework. Make sure all the necessary school supplies are there. Eliminate distractions. Bedroom is not always the best place

What is HOMEWORK?

It's also

- Talking with your child about school and future life goals
- Cleaning and organizing notebooks and book bags
- Reading your child's textbooks and agenda
- Asking your child to explain a math problem to you
- Rewriting class notes neater or illustrating the notes
- Making flashcards to study

10
MINUTES
A NIGHT

Spend 10 minutes each night helping your child with school work.

IT REALLY ONLY TAKES 10 QUALITY MINUTES A NIGHT, EVERY NIGHT, WITH NO INTERRUPTIONS OR DISTRACTIONS.

YOU CAN DO IT!

YES, YOU CAN!

STAY INFORMED!

- Check school and county websites

- Post a family calendar in a visible area and write down all family activities.

- Role model time management to your child.

Attendance Counts!

Students miss important information when they are absent.

Make up work can interfere with regular work and start a downward decline.

Absentee policy is on page 7 of the Student Handbook. Students shouldn't miss more than 9 days in a school year.

Get to school on time.

Students should be in homeroom by 7:30
so they don't miss announcements or handouts.

Starting the day rushed can ruin your day.
