

FRESHMAN/SOPHOMORE YEAR

- Students and parents should be aware that course selection from the beginning of high school is one of the most important parts of selective college admissions.
- Make sure that you are taking the most challenging courses available to you.
- Become involved in activities you enjoy. Students who are involved with their high school community will most likely be involved in their college campus.
- Begin to think about what type of college you would like to attend and what areas of interest you would like to study.
