Eight At-Home Boredom Busters

Beat the I'm-bored blues with our big list of fun to-dos!

1. Keep the kids entertained with these top tips. This roundup of ideas is jam-packed with suggestions to keep the kids busy for a few hours during the holidays and beyond.
2. Bake some cookies. Baking chocolate chip cookies on a quiet day is a popular idea, especially with kids. Check out these four different ways to give the classic chocolate chip cookie a new, tasty twist.
3. Watch family-friendly movies. From the heartfelt "ET" to the hilarious "Mrs. Doubtfire," this list is non-stop classic movie enjoyment from beginning to The End.
4. Try a new hobby and boost your happiness at the same time. The results of these hobbies are so satisfying. You'll love having something beautiful to show for your efforts.
5. Get organized (you'll thank yourself). Not only will organizing room-by-room make it easy to conquer clutter a little at a time but doing so will give you an incredible sense of accomplishment. What a great way to spend some time this holiday!
6. Take some "me" time after you get all organized (and even if you don't). The soothing self-care tips from influencer Taylor Heinrich of HoneyPot Health and Wellness are simple and nourishing.
7. Create a wall gallery. If you've ever wanted a stylish gallery wall like the ones you see on Instagram, books, and magazines—this article shows you how easy it is.
8. Start your own easy, at-home fitness routine. Learn how to create your own exercise "kit" that you can use at home anytime.

Just to name a few...check out the website. ~

Seniors ~ Final Checklist for College

In spring semester, seniors will need to:

- Visit colleges on their “short list.”
- Consider college acceptances; compare financial aid packages offered.
- Call college financial aid representatives with questions.
- Decide on the college to attend (typically by May 1) and contact its offices.
- Make informed decisions about student loans.
