Last week Ms. Stephenson's anatomy classes began learning about different systems of the body, in preparation of their dissection lab. Students created their own 3D representations of three bodily systems. Each group taught the class about the systems they chose to present. This project gave students more insight into the systems that make up a person, and an idea of what they would encounter when they began their dissections.

College Application Day at WHS

Sometimes it can be confusing and a bit overwhelming trying to apply for college online. Sponsored by the SC Commission on Higher Education, Wednesday was designated as "College Application Day" to give students an opportunity to fill out applications online in the computer labs with some assistance. Coordinated through the guidance department and the students' U.S. Government classes, seniors who completed their resource guide were given time to complete their application(s) online. Parents were also invited to participate with their child(ren). The students who participated received goodie bags, were placed in a drawing for door prizes, and if they filled out at least three applications, received a certificate from Medieval Times and placed in a drawing to win an iPad. For College Day, twelve schools waived their application fee, which can typically cost between $25-$70 (on average) per application. Those schools were Arclabs, HGTC, CCU, Central Carolina Tech, Converse College, Florence Darlington Tech, S.C. State, Francis Marion University, Cocker College, Columbia College, Limestone College, and Trident Tech.

Of the 180 seniors enrolled at WHS, 105 took advantage of this opportunity to fill out online applications and said it really helped to go through the process with an expert and know that the application(s) were filled out correctly. Mrs. Graham, Waccamaw's head guidance counselor, said it is important to submit applications early because college housing is often assigned based on application submission dates.

A special thank you to Hilary Dickerson (Columbia College), Cynthia Johnston (CCU), Malene Baxley (SC CanGo), Kristi Schoenfelder (Pittsburgh Institute of Aeronautics), Julie Richardson (Coker College), Catherine Team (Commission on Higher Ed.), Gray Roper (HGTC), Eileen Patonay (SC CanGo), and the guidance department who were available to assist the students.
