

Technique 8: Post It

Ronald Bowlin & Jim Patrick

Technique Summary: Posting the objective in the same place every day in your class allows students, co-workers, administrators, and visitors to identify the purpose of the teaching that will occur on that day.

How is post it beneficial for others?

- Students: Awareness. By posting the objective of the lesson the students will know what they are trying to do for that day. It also will assist them in work more intentionally towards the goal.
- Co-workers: Feedback. A co-working can give you advice about activities that have worked for them if they know what objective you are covering on that day.
- Administrators: Feedback. Administrators can address whether teaching is “good” or whether it is goal oriented.
- Visitors: PR. The objective being posted allows anyone who visits the room to know what the expected goal from the teacher for the students will be for that specific day.
