Rapp Nature Camp activities are almost all outdoors and will include games and songs, hiking, river walking, identifying moths and butterflies, assessing water quality, safely catching and releasing wild animals, caring for flowers and trees, and producing a camp newspaper. Campers will share their special projects with visitors on the last day of each session. Be prepared to get wet and muddy! If you are new to our camp, you might want to request a copy of our newsletter, News from Singing Creek, which gives a good overview of camp activities.

Camper participation fee is $200 for each one-week session. SCHOLARSHIPS are available to a limited number of campers. Don't hesitate to inquire.
