

What is Core/Flex

In September of 2016, we will be piloting a learning support system called Core-Flex. This new approach is a different way of addressing student achievement. Simply stated, Core-Flex provides time and support for all students.

For those students considered “Flex” students, they will be provided daily time to work independently, seek enrichment or assistance and/or access a variety of options on campus. To be considered a Flex student, students must have D grades or higher.

Any students who have an F or Incomplete will be considered “Core” students. These students will have daily required attendance in an intensive support class/tutoring center. The goal for these students is to provide additional time and support to complete assignments.

We believe we can reduce failure rates, increase the number of students considered on-time for graduation, and most importantly, elevate the general concern for student achievement school-wide.

Together we can make a difference!
