A little over a quarter of our school year is complete, and I am very proud of our school district. The month of November is a crucial time annually in our schools as improvement plans and goals are finalized. In the spirit of Thanksgiving, I would like to encourage everyone to spend time reflecting upon those things for which you are thankful. Personally, I am thankful for my family, church, colleagues, and community. I am committing this month to spending time daily reflecting upon the many blessings I have in my life. I encourage you to do the same.

Embracing Productive Struggle

Achieving greatness is a topic discussed throughout the Breckinridge County School District. Last month, I reviewed the importance of believing in our abilities and the people around us in achieving greatness. Embracing productive struggle is another key step in achieving greatness in our lives. In order for students to excel, educators working in schools and districts today must subject students to productive struggle, teaching how to persevere through challenges. Engaging students in rigorous coursework in school and helping them develop a love for learning early in life are essential to entering the twenty-first century work force ready and willing to meet its challenges. School communities play a large role in this process as well. Parents, family members, and community members can promote the success of all by encouraging students to own their learning and to embrace challenges ahead of them. Moving forward, we must continually challenge ourselves to grow in our own learning in an effort to achieve greatness.
