

CHAPTER 2: Historical Setting

The Alexandria Monroe Township Historical Society was started in 1979 by John and Marsha Madden, Max and Nancy Draper, Curt and Rosemary Ellis, Jim Donahue and John Noffze. John Madden was the first president. The Historical Society is located at 313 North Harrison. The museum contains a great collection of articles and have displays including Aladdin Lamps, and memorabilia from Lippincott Glass, Kelly Axe and the Union Traction Co. It also includes a large library with many research books from other states.

HISTORY

Alexandria was laid out in June 1836 by Ninevah Barry, Madison County surveyor. It was named for Alexander the Great. Speculators and investors bought lots for as much as $50 with the hope that the town would grow quickly when the Indiana Central Canal went through town as plotted. The canal program in Indiana failed, however, and the speculators' dreams of wealth died. Alexandria was incorporated as a town in 1876 and as a city in 1893. Town growth again increased as two railroads, the Cincinnati, Wabash & Michigan and the Lafayette, Muncie & Bloomington, were completed through Alexandria in 1876.

Alexandria again experienced a growth period as Madison County entered the gas boom era. The first gas well in Madison County was located in Alexandria. Gas was discovered on March 27, 1887 in Well No. 1 of the Alexandria Mining and Exploring Company. In 1880, Alexandria's population was 488, but it had grown to 5,300 by 1892. After the discovery of gas, factories began to locate in Alexandria. Local landowners lured manufacturers with promises of free lots and free fuel to reputable industries. The town was a good manufacturing location not only because of the abundance of gas, but because of the underlying layers of quality limestone.

Among the industries that located in town during this period were the Alexandria Window Glass Company and the DePauw Plate Glass Company. DePauw Plate Glass Works (now know as the American Plate Glass Company) moved from New Albany, Indiana to Alexandria which was in the center of the gas region. The DePauw Plate Glass Division was located north of the Lake Erie & Western Railroad and West Washington Street Road one block west of the Mud Creek Bridge. Its Window Glass Works lay on the east side of town between Third Street and Lake Erie & Western. Glass industries predominated in Alexandria in the nineteenth and early twentieth century.

Other factories locating in Alexandria during the gas boom included Lippencott Chimney Works, located between West Washington and the Lake Erie & Western Railroad east of Belmont Street; the Indiana Brick Works, located south of the city; the Keely Ax Manufacturing Company, located north of Alexandria; and Union Steel, which employed 1,600-2,000 people and was located south of the city. Union Steel was one of the largest plants in the world at this time.

The decade of the 1890's was a time of great growth for Alexandria. In 1892, the "Alexandria Record" was established as a newspaper by Moore and Myers for the purpose of "booming that thriving little city." Before this, Joseph Fenimore published a paper in Alexandria called the "Alexandria Bee." The Alexandria Press Weekly and semi-weekly was established in 1893 and later became known at the Daily News. The Gas Belt News was established in 1895.

Also at this time, two banks, the Alexandria Bank and the Commercial Bank, were established. In 1890, an opera house was built at the southeast corner of Harrison and Church Streets.

A comprehensive electrical railway system connecting towns in the gas region was completed in the 1890's. The Union Traction Company interurban furnished transportation to Alexandria beginning in 1893. In fact, the first interurban in the state ran from Anderson to Alexandria.

Alexandria's Public Library was built in 1902. Several commercial structures were also built at this time such as the Neoclassical Perry Block and Davis Block on Harrison Street.

By the second decade of the 1900's, Alexandria and other cities in the gas region experienced the disastrous failure of natural gas. It was not until the late 1920's that Alexandria's economy began to make a slow comeback. Alexandria's great glass industry finally faded out in 1952.*

ARCHAEOLOGICAL/HISTORIC SITES

We reviewed the State Historic Sites and Structures listings and the National Register of Historic Places listings from the Indiana Department of Natural Resources' Internet site to identify structures listed within the Planning Area. We also reviewed the Interim Report of Historic Sites and Structures for Madison County to identify potentially historic sites located in the Planning Area. Several sites located within Alexandria are identified in the Interim Report. A map and a listing of the individual sites of the Historic District described in the Interim Report are shown in can be seen in Table 1. A map and a listing of the individual sites of the scattered sites described in the Interim Report can be seen in Table 2.
