

Kara Suckla is the director of school district G. She graduated from Dolores High School in 1992 and attended a year of college at Fort Lewis. She married her late husband Judd Suckla in 1994 and has two sons, Chase and Tanner. Both children attend M-CHS. Chase will graduate in 2016 and Tanner in 2018.

Kara owned and operated All Star Ribbon, an award ribbon manufacturing business, from her home for 15 years. While her children were young, she spent a lot of her time volunteering at Lewis-Arriola Elementary where she was also a PTO member. After selling the award ribbon business, she worked as a substitute teacher/para in the school district. Kara also worked beside her husband at the family owned business, Cortez Livestock Auction and continues to work at Suckla Auctions, LLC. Having an auctioneer husband presented many opportunities for her to interact with the public. She plans to continue that interaction and stay involved in the community which is so dear to her heart.

Currently, she serves on the Lewis-Arriola Community Center Board. Kara looks forward to working with the current school board and hopes to make a positive contribution while serving the school district.

Kara is passionate about being outdoors and thinks living in Southwest Colorado is ideal. She loves being a short drive to the mountains, desert or city. She enjoys hiking, snow and waterskiing, golfing and basically anything that allows her to be outside.
