During the week of July 17-21, 2017, local teachers participated in the annual Summer Teacher Internship Program sponsored by the Asheboro/Randolph Chamber of Commerce. These internships allow teachers to learn firsthand about local businesses, industries, and governmental services. The week’s events culminate with a luncheon on Friday, July 21.

Michelle Williams of Randleman Middle School works with George Taylor at the Randolph County Public Library.

Virginia Washburn (right) of Wheatmore High School works with Staci Hazelwood of Randolph County Social Services.

Mindy Hankins of Randleman Middle School works with the Randolph County Health Department.

Cathy Napier (right) of Southwestern Randolph High School works with Evelyn Gongaware at the Christians United Outreach Center (CUOC).

Molly Kenyon of Southwestern Randolph Middle School works with Matthew Pinion of Randolph County Emergency Management Services.

Michelle Saunders (left) of Southwestern Randolph High School works with Julie Fowler of the Asheboro/Randolph Chamber of Commerce.

Jessica Latham (right) of Southwestern Randolph Middle School works with Marie French at the Randolph County Senior Adults Association.

Lora Hill (right) of Eastern Randolph High School works with Darlene Reeder at Elastic Therapy.

Andrew Atwell (right) of Southwestern Randolph High School works with Bill Avelino of Timken Company.

Rebecca Brady of Northeastern Randolph Middle School works with Justin Cline at Oliver Rubber Company.

Cathy Napier (right) of Southwestern Randolph High School works with Evelyn Gongaware at the Christians United Outreach Center (CUOC).