Great attendance means slushie party!

Randleman Elementary School third grade students earned a slushie celebration for attaining an average daily attendance rate of 98.56 percent. The students were challenged by Dr. James Johnson, principal of Randleman Elementary, to get attendance above 98 percent. If the students’ attendance got above 98 percent, they got a slushie and Johnson agreed to wear a suit made with flamingo print material. Shown here are, from left, Caleb Anderson, Aubri Hill, Principal Dr. James Johnson, Itzel Fernandez, Avery Carr, Emma Adams and third grade teacher Katie McMichael.