RCPS hosted a School Safety Summit on Wednesday, April 3rd. This informative community event, a collaboration between Rappahannock County Public Schools and the Rappahannock County Sherriff's Office, offered helpful safety-related topics for parents, community members, and students.

“The safety summit was a timely, informative, and interactive discussion that helped open my eyes to some of the dangers on the internet, while reassuring me that, as a parent, I can partner with my kids to harness the positive aspects of being online. A huge thanks to all who worked to bring this to Rappahannock!”

Rappahannock County Public Schools would like to thank the Sheriff's Office, our featured presenters, parents, and everyone in attendance for working together to foster a safe community for all.

“

“I really enjoyed Mr. Rasmussen's presentation on the dangers of substance abuse among our teens and pre-teens and what we can do about it. He stressed the importance of setting a good example for them. So much information is available to them through social media, T.V., etc. When you see something unhealthy, talk to them about it. Share your beliefs and values.”

Principal's Breakfast

Students that demonstrated excellent behavior throughout the month were nominated by their homeroom teachers to be recognized by participating in a special Principal's Breakfast. The selected students for this past month enjoyed a yummy breakfast consisting of eggs, bacon, and pancakes with Principal Temple and Assistant Principal Phillips.

NHS Inductee Ceremony

Fourteen students from RCHS were inducted into the National Honor Society (NHS) during the 2019 National Honor Society Induction Ceremony on April 1st. The 2019 inductees were selected based on areas of scholarship, service, leadership, and character. In a ceremony organized by the five NHS officers, the inductees were recognized for achieving candidacy and being selected as members. According to Bryce Jones, the current President of the RCHS Chapter of the National Honors Society, the newest members would be joining "the nation's oldest, largest, and most prestigious student recognition program." The Spring 2019 NHS Inductees include Madison Brantley, Bryce Fryant, Agustin Garcia, Alec Petty, Allie Phillips, Ryan Raiford, Jenna Robey, Olivia Scheulen, Evelyn Vandrey, Natalie Way, Camron Wayland, Rachel Weghorst, Jordan Welch, and Donovan Zook.
