FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Spotswood High School Freshman Has First Book Published

Danielle Ternyila, a 15 year-old freshman at Spotswood High School had her first book published. Dependent on Rose, a teen fiction romantic thriller, is the story of twin sisters, Hope and Emily, who inherit magical powers from their grandmother at age sixteen. When Emily falls in love with Aaron Greene, an enemy of Hope, she finds herself forced to make a choice. However, this decision is not as simple as it seems: Emily wouldn't want to hurt either Aaron or her sister, but when she sees Hope attempting to kill Aaron, she may change her mind. And if she does, their magic will counteract each other's, making this fight more than just fair. Dependent on Rose is published by KidPub Press under the pseudonym Danielle Paige.

Danielle began writing her book about a year ago when she was in the 8th grade. She states that she wrote it "out of boredom and never expected it to be more than a simple activity to give her something to do." However, with the encouragement and support of her then-Language Arts teacher Janet Marshall, she was able to finish and ultimately get her book published. Danielle thinks very highly of Mrs. Marshall and deems her "the best teacher." She is also grateful to fellow classmate Joanna Eaton, who did the artwork for the front and back covers of the book.

Danielle is a lifelong resident of Spotswood and is a product of the Spotswood school district. She is the oldest of three children, with a brother in the 8th grade and a sister in the 6th grade. In addition to Mrs. Marshall, she lists her family, friends and author Melissa De La Cruz as her inspirations. She loves reading novels of all kinds and writes whenever she gets the chance. Her future aspiration is to be a fiction author.

Dependent on Rose is currently being sold on the publisher's web site, kidpubpress.com as well as amazon.com.
