THE STORY

Five baseball pitchers were at a convention signing autographs. After the convention they got together and talked about baseball. Their names were Grover, Nolan, Dino, Chris and Gaylord. They all had a secret pitch which they called a slider, a grinder, a greaser, a splitter and a beaner. They played for different teams; they played for the Mules, the Goats, the Aardvarks, the Warblers and the Turtles. Last season they each won a different number of games. They won 5 games, 7 games, 10 games, 12 games and 14 games. Based on the clues, match the pitchers with their secret pitches, their teams and the number of games they won.

THE CLUES

1. Grover, Nolan and Dino did not play for either the Mules or the Goats; one of them won the fewest games and one of them won the most games.
2. Chris won twice as many games as Grover, but Nolan won twice as many games as Dino.
3. Nolan, Chris and Gaylord did not throw either a slider or a grinder, but one of them did play for the Aardvarks.
4. The player who won half as many games as Nolan played for the Turtles and threw a truly wicked grinder.
5. The player for the Goats, whose secret pitch was a greaser, won twice as many games as the player for the Warblers.
